

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

Heavy showers this afternoon and evening have proved persistent in N Ireland and across southern and western Scotland. With little time for road surfaces to dry out, ice will form as road temperatures dip below zero this evening under clearing skies leading to some slippery road surfaces and pavements.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 21:00 on Thu, 27th Feb 2014 until 09:00 on Fri, 28th Feb 2014

Showers this afternoon have left the roads wet in many parts of N Ireland, as well as southern and western parts of Scotland. As skies clear tonight there is the risk of ice forming, especially on untreated surfaces. The public should be aware of the risk of disruption to transport due to the slippery roads.
